North End Community Health Centre Black Lives Matter

The history of the North End Community Health Centre is rooted in the historic African Nova Scotian community in the North End of Halifax. Our community continues to face discrimination from health care services, emergency services, and the systemic racism that plagues our society.

Black Lives Matter.

As a leading organization in the health community, NECHC acknowledges anti-black racism exists and that it has an impact on the health and well-being of Black-Canadians. We are committed to taking action to directly address the outcomes across the social determinants of health for Black communities. It demands that our dedication to health equity can only move forward by being an active participant in dismantling systemic racism.

Our team at NECHC is dedicated to supporting the health and well-being of our community through quality, inclusive and accessible health care, this includes primary health care and education, food security and housing.

The staff and board of the North End Community Health Centre raise our voices and stand in solidarity in the fight against anti-Black racism, mistreatment and injustice towards African Nova Scotians and Black people in our communities and across the world.
